

SHARP DEBATE AT WOMAN'S BOOTH

Miss Luscomb and Miss Leaby Answer Men Who Criticize Suffragism.

Miss Luscomb and members of the committee had a busy day yesterday at the booth on the Fair Grounds. Many visitors came in during the forenoon and afternoon, and four petitions were filled out, men as well as women affixing their signatures.

The biggest crowd gathered around the booth while Miss Luscomb was speaking in the afternoon, her talk turning mainly on the political and social phases of suffrage. A man who was present, a New Yorker by nationality, asked the speaker many questions, as to why women desired suffrage and what the probable effect on them would be if suffrage were granted.

The questions were answered promptly and fully by Miss Luscomb, who entered into the discussion with spirit and was not in the least embarrassed or thrown off her guard.

Among the audience was a Virginian hailing from Hanover county, who was severe in openly expressed criticisms as to Virginia suffragists and their speaker.

Miss Marie Leaby, of Richmond, met his remarks in a pleasant spirit, but with a complete vindication of the women.

The Equal Suffrage League of Virginia is preparing for a big and continuous reception to-day.

PRESBYTERY BEGINS ITS FALL MEETING

Rev. Frank Uherka Elected Moderator. Several Richmond Ministers in Attendance.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Burkeville, Va., October 4.—East Hanover Presbytery began its fall meeting here tonight. The opening sermon was preached by the retiring moderator, Rev. M. B. Porter, of Richmond. He announced, as his subject, "Jesus, the Extraordinary Savior." Dr. J. P. Smith and Dr. J. N. Fair took part in the services, and the choir rendered special music.

Rev. Frank Uherka was elected moderator, and Rev. William S. Campbell and Dr. H. Chalkley were elected clerks. Three young men, T. M. Minor, of the First Church, Richmond; W. H. Eubank, of the Porter Street Church, Richmond; and R. V. Lancaster, of Ashland, were presented to the Presbytery as candidates for the ministry. This examination was conducted by Dr. Fair, and was unusually impressive.

Among those present were the following ministers: P. T. McFadden, D. D., Russell Cecil, D. D., J. Calvin Stewart, D. D., J. Y. Fair, D. D., J. P. Smith, D. D., William S. Campbell, J. J. Fix, of Richmond; T. P. Epps, D. D., of Blackstone; W. H. Bain, of A. M. Hill and R. Jones, of Petersburg; R. M. Williams, of Crewe; W. J. Strickler, of Burkeville.

INSPECTED POLICE

Mounted Men Pass in Review and Make Fine Showing.

One of the most pleasant features of the Fair yesterday was the inspection of the Richmond mounted police, made by the judges of the races, at the suggestion of W. J. Carter.

Headed by Sergeant R. B. Sowell, the squad paraded before the grandstand and was liberally cheered. All the men were dressed in trim, neat uniforms, and their equipment was in the best possible order, with not a spot or stain showing anywhere. At the end of the review awards were made in the following order, with the names of the horses first: "Jack," W. L. Krug; "Joe," R. W. Allen; "Jim," S. B. Flournoy; "Harry," R. B. Jordan. Major Werner was very pleased with the showing of his men.

The Sturdy Stride of the man on the street calls for the comfortable fit of the Crossett Shoe.

This season's models of the Crossett Shoe have distinctive "young man" features. Smart, snappy styles. Some semi-fancy designs with silk panels and decorative trim. Tans with brass buttons and eyelets.

CITY'S TREASURY DEPLETED.
Alderman Designs When Street Improvement Program Is Adopted.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Durham, N. C., October 4.—Alderman John W. Hill resigned his office to-day after losing a fight in the City Council against a street improvement program. The City Council last night voted to go ahead with extensive work, and despite the conditions of the city, Hill announced that he would seek an injunction order restraining the city from carrying out the program.

Alderman Hill declared that the city's floating indebtedness is $200,000, and that he has no right to borrow more money without the submission to the people of a bond issue. Alderman Hill is a wealthy man.

The lynching was conducted quickly and the mob, forming from a doling crowd, leaving no tract save the ashes of the negro.

The home was beautifully decorated with many flowers and cut flowers. Dr. W. R. L. Smith, of Chapel Hill, N. C., officiated. Miss Nannie Mahone, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and Elmore Fisher, cousin of the bride, of Lynchburg, was the best man. Among the out-of-town guests in attendance were Mr. and Mrs. S. O. Fisher, of Lynchburg; and Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Bibb, of Washington. Following the marriage Mr. and Mrs. Anderson left on the Washington steamer. Their honeymoon will include a visit to Washington and Philadelphia.

There were no attendants, the wedding being simple because of the recent bereavement in the bride's family. After a trip to the Catskills and other places, they will be at home in Paducah.

CHALONER'S JOKE MADE HIT AT FAIR

Also Sire of Dolgorouki Caused Thousands to Quote "Looney" Telegram.

"Dolgorouki, Dolgorouki," murmured a man yesterday afternoon, as he stood gazing on a sleek, black Berkshire hog belonging to John Armstrong Chaloner, of Merry Mills, Albemarle county. "It seems to me that I've heard that name before." Above the big, sleek, black back of the prostrate pig, in big letters, was writ, "The Sire of Dolgorouki," and by and by the solution came to the wondering man.

Thousands of others passed by and stopped to read the inscription, and soon the answer came to all. They recalled that the owner of the pig was the author of the novel, "Who's Looney Now?" which will go down into history as an inside light to an international wedding—a woman's beauty and her arms on one side and a man's wealth on the other.

And now, while Sheriff Bob Chanler is seeking to regain his wealth and Madame Chaloner is seeking to retain it, Prince Dolgorouki, of Russia, has come into the limelight, and his name is whispered in court circles with that of the famous and most beautiful woman in the world. When John Armstrong Chaloner, a brother of the sheriff of Dutchess county, N. Y., received the news of the estrangement of the Duchess of Argyll, he was the subject of the disposition of his brother. He sat him down and penned that famous query, "Who's looney now?" No answer has ever been received.

And yesterday when thousands looked and wondered at the name of the Albemarle porker, they, too, said, "Who's looney now?"

And the four-footed one is not at the fair. Only the sire is here.

Randolph-Macon Ready for Game Against Richmond College.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Ashland, Va., October 4.—The entire Randolph-Macon football squad was back in the harness this afternoon for the first time since their surprisingly strong game against the University of Virginia on last Saturday. Some of the men are a little stiff and bruised, but otherwise all are in tip-top condition, and are working hard in preparation for the game against Richmond College next Saturday. The team worked out under Captain Rowe this afternoon, and Coach Warren in Bedford City, giving the Randolph-Macon Academy squad there a few pointers on the new game. He will return to Ashland to-morrow morning, and will put the squad here through at least two scrimmages before the contest with the Spiders on Saturday. He said to his men before leaving Charlottesville that he was entirely satisfied with the game they put up as, indeed, is the entire student body at Ashland.

Yesterday afternoon the players took a run, but indulged in no practice. This afternoon Rowe ran them through a long signal drill, using all of the men on the squad at one time or another. The punters and drop-kickers also had a long practice. It was conclusively shown at Charlottesville that they are to play a large part in the team's success.

Next Saturday will be the first chance the students here will have to see the plays, which they have so enthusiastically watched in the forming trial. A half holiday was expected, and they will attend the game en masse. Rooting practice has already started, so that the "rah" will all have time to lead the songs and yell. Henry Soley was elected chief rooter, and enthusiasm runs high even this far ahead of the game. The rivalry between the Spiders and the Yellow Jackets is of life-long standing, and next Saturday's trial of strength is awaited with keen interest.

Valuable Library Purchased. [Special to The Times-Dispatch.]
Harrisonburg, Va., October 4.—Bridgewater College, the leading Brethren institution in Virginia, has purchased the splendid library of 4,000 volumes left by the late Rev. Samuel K. Cox, D. D., who died about a year ago. Dr. Cox was a minister, teacher, editor, author and lecturer of rare versatility, and during the eighty-six years of his life, sixty-three of which were spent in the Methodist ministry, he collected a library of rare worth.

A very interesting and lucid treatment of the tariff bill was made by Mr. Jones, and a severe arraignment of the Republican party for the prevailing high cost of the necessities of life called forth much applause. Throughout the entire address the large audience listened with marked attention.
